After they saved her life in 2014, Jillian Easton invites STARS to her wedding and makes donation on behalf of her family and guests

BY KARA KINNA Ten years after they saved her life and airlifted her to the Regina General Hospital, Rocanville bride Jillian Easton made a point of inviting STARS Air Ambulance to her wedding on August 17, 2024, making a donation to them, and publicly thanking a donation to them, and publicly thanking them for saving her life. "On June 25, 2014 I was involved in a very serious motor vehicle accident and I was flown by STARS from Moosomin to Regina," says Jillian. Jillian was hit by a semi on the Trans-Canada Highway at Moosomin, and says her injuries were so severe that her doc-tors did not know if she would recover. "If it wasn't for STARS, I would not have had the medical attention I needed and the guick service and getting me from and the quick service and getting me from point A to point B, and if it was not for them I would not be here today," she says. "My doctors, they said that anybody that has come through those doors in that type of accident and those injuries-they have never seen anybody either come out alive or have a complete recovery.

Jillian was in a coma when STARS picked her up and has no memory of the flight, but says she knew she wanted to do something to thank STARS for saving her something to thank STARS for saving her life. "When I was going through our wed-ding planning process, I wanted it to be unique and be about us, so I was a bit of a bride-zilla," she says. "I knew not many of our guests knew that I was in a very serious motor vehicle accident. And so I always wanted to give back to STAPS and serious motor vehicle accident. And so I always wanted to give back to STARS and to just say thank you for saving my life, I wouldn't be here without you." The wedding took place at St. John's Lutheran Church in New Finland, Sask, and the reception took place at the Nu-trien Rocanville Community Hall in Ro-canville canville.

"I am a STARS VIP, so we've done a few photoshoots for STARS and promo-tions and advertisements, but I just didn't think that was enough and so I wanted to include them in our wedding because it was a huge part of my life and I wanted to donate," says Jillian. "So we did our party favors. Instead of traditional wedding favors, we made a $1,200 donation to STARS on behalf of all our guests. "I donated under $1,000 not long after the accident in 2014 to STARS. I knew that I wanted to donate over $1,000 to get my/ our name on a STARS 'big cheque' that hangs at the STARS base in Regina. That also inspired me to work towards contributing a larger donation to STARS with our wedding party favours, instead of having traditional ones."

Jillian said it felt good to be able to give back to STARS at her wedding. "It felt incredible. It felt like a little lump sum because they saved my life and I wouldn't be here without them, but it felt huge that we were able to do that.

"We had a STARS crew member come to our wedding. He had a big cheque there with the donation on it, and my maid of honor introduced the crew member and told my story about how STARS saved my life, and I remember when she was doing the speech, the whole floor was silent. You could hear a pin drop, and you could see jaws drop.

She says many people don't understand how crucial the STARS air ambulance service is. "It's something I never thought I'd use and it's something you just never know, it could be your neighbor, it could be your parents, it could be your best friend, but you just never know when you are going to need it, and they are always there.

"We were in the STARS calendar one year and have done photoshoots for them and advertisements. I've met my flight crew and when my oldest son was young-er, we'd go to the STARS base all the time and do a tour. I always liked to show the kids the helicopter that saved me. "That doesn't happen every day that a surviving patient can come back."

A special night for STARS Darren Entner is a Clinical Operations Manager with STARS, and the one who was invited to Jillian's wedding "We transported billian many, many years ago. I actually had the opportunity to take care of her dad as well when he had his medical issues as well when he was in Regina, so I've known the Easton family for quite some time," he says. "I was incredibly honored that she would even think of us. We've crossed paths with the Easton family many times since that initial meeting with her and her family. And we've crossed paths in many different venues. And when she reached out and asked if we would be able to come to her wedding, I actually had to switch a shift so I could go, but I was very hon-ored that they would think of us, and to not only be willing to donate some of their funds from their wedding, but also just to invite us as well. It was just an honor to be there.

"Each one of our patients that we flv. we call the VIPs, or very important patients. And there are some that become more than just the patient that we flew. And we always encourage patients to come back and meet their crew who flew them and see the aircraft, because often when we fly them the morels encode more that they them, the people aren't aware that they had been in a helicopter. And sometimes that's very nice for us in the health care profession as well. Sometimes it provides closure, or feedback to see how they've done. It's very nice for us to see those pa-tients and I feel that the patients get a lot out of it as well.

That can actually help the patient a lot and provide them with some closure. "It's incredibly rewarding, it's one of the best parts of our job, to see the fruits of our labor, the work that we put our job, to see the truits of our labor, the work that we put in on a day to day basis with our education and constant training. And to provide those patients with their best chance on their worst day and then see somebody who was incredibly sick or had potential to not do so well, and then we can go out and bring that experience, training and high level of care to a patient in all parts of Saskatch-ewan, not just in the major centres—it's pretty rewarding to have them come back with their families. "Jillian is an excellent example of that. Now you see

"Jillian is an excellent example of that. Now you see her with her two sons and getting married. And I remem-ber her as a young girl coming in and being so thankful to see us and now she has a wonderful family. "It was a pretty neat full circle moment. Because I dis-tinctly remember the first time we met Jillian and her family. We have an annual Saskatchewan versus Mani-toba hockey game and the first time we met them, we met them in Moosomin. We were driving through and stopped for supper and I think either she saw that we had some STARS gear and her mom or dad came over and asked if we were from STARS and we were able to explain that we were there and flew her, and that was the start of our relationship and we've had a great one ever since

Entner says he does not recall anyone with STARS ever

Enther says he does not recall anyone with STARS ever being invited to a wedding of STARS patient before. "In my 12 years of being here, I think that is the first one that I've personally attended. It was cool to be in-vited and cool to be there. It was a great night. It was nice, I got to sit with the Easton family. I honestly felt like it was just a very special, special night for a lot of people, and me being one of them. It was great to be there and feel very honored how well they spoke about us. It was a great oreat night." great, great night.'

Chiefs chasing third straight Super Bowl

Bookmakers in Las Vegas say the Kansas City Chiefs are the betting favourites to win the 2025 Super Bowl, but coach Andy Reid's team had the most underwhelming regular season of the top five or six playoff contenders

Even though the Chiefs went 15-2, losing the unim-portant last game of the season where quarterback Patrick Mahomes and a number of other regulars did not play, their regular season was coloured with mediocrity. The stick is the responsibility factor and is not used as a cudgel for offense but rather a more respectful use within the information and cyber security world in the South East Cornerstone Public School Division.

The stick carrier, Brian Belinsky, provid-ed a 45 minute break out and breakdown of information regarding information dis-pensed through the technology paths in the public school division to the board of trustees on December 18.

Belinsky, manager of information sys-tems in SECPSD, had been asked to provide information regarding the dispens-ing of information via the cyber world and to also address recent updates in the implementation of various cyber security measures during the school board's open business session. FRANCES MARGARET McCarthy December 29, 1919 -

DECEMBER 29, 1919 -JANUARY 2, 2025 Frances Margaret Mc-Carthy passed away peacefully on January 2, 2025, at Cobblestone House in Moosomin, surrounded by her lov-ing family while (In Tha ing family while 'In The Garden,' 'The Old Rug-ged Cross' and 'Amazing Grace' played softly in the background. Frances had turned 105 on December 29 2024

There will be a celebra-tion of life on the farm in the summer at her request.

In lieu of flowers, me-morial tributes may be made to Moosomin Integrated Health Care Centre for a CT scanner.

Frances was born to

Thomas Roe Frv and Rosa Gertrude Wells of the Spring Creek District. She was one of four children: Irene, Frances, Fisher, and Bill. She recalls her childhood years as happy, and herself as a much-loved and well-cared-for child. Alas, her carefree childhood on the farm was to end abruptly when her beloved mother passed away. Frances remembers climbing a hill to pick pur-ple flowers to make her mother feel better during her illness. Frances was twelve when she lost her mother, but Rosa had taught her girls well, and Frances and Irene took care of the household, and their two younger brothers from that day on. The girls con-tinued to clean the house 'from top to bottom' on Saturday so that it would be clean for Sunday. By all accounts, Tommy Fry was a good and kind man. Frances always said that she wanted to be like that she wanted to be like her Dad, who had died peacefully in his sleep. Her wish was granted. Frances married John McCarthy in 1945 at St. Andrew's Church, Wa-pella. They lived on the McCarthy farm all of their lives John was a very so-lives. John was a very social person: he and Frances loved to dance with their group of friends ev-ery weekend in Moosoery weekend in Mooso-min and the surrounding areas. They also enjoyed play ing cards with family and friends. In 1983 Brian and Sharon moved to the farm. and it became Spring Creek Simmentals. This enabled Frances to contin-ue to live there after John died, until she decided at 103 that she should move to Cobblestone House to be cared for. John and Frances had four children: Joan (Alan); Brian (Sharon): Rosemary (Werner); and Tim (Kathy) (Werner); and I im (Kathy). Frances was devoted to her children throughout their lives, and they were equally devoted to her. She had a genuine, lov-ing relationship with her seven grandchildren and great-crandchildren many great-grandchil-dren: Andrea (Mark) and their two daughters; Brian (Zora) and their two sons; Dan (Olga) and their four children; Sean (Simina) and their two sons; Lauren (Charlie) and their daugh-ter; as well as Drew, and Devin (Carly) and their daughter.

Frances loved to have long, leisurely conversa-tions with each of them.

The whole family enjoyed eating at Grandma's house, where the food was grown in her garden and served on her table, fresh in the summer, and pre-served in the winter.

Frances had a strong work ethic, a remarkable calmness, an acceptance of the way things were, and a great deal of common sense. She accepted her lot in life and put a great deal of thought into doing the right thing. When she had done

When she had done her work for the day, you would find her at her din-ing room table with her well-used dictionary, doing crossword puzzles. She often sat at her piano and played old favourites, or she might go out and push mow a few acres of lawn. Her vegetable gar-den was a weed-free work of art. Brian estimates that she grew eighty gardens in her lifetime.

Frances enjoyed watch ing political shows on TV and could give you a rea-soned opinion on any sub-ject in the news. A couple ject in the news. A couple of days before she passed, she asked Brian and Tim if "Trudeau had taken his walk in the snow yet." They shared a chuckle over that. Sean bought her a computer because he knew she was game for anything. They eventually replaced it with an iPad, on which she played end-less games of Solitaire and Sudoku and was able to Facetime with all.

Frances lived on the farm with Brian and Sharon, Dan, Sean and Lauren, in her own farmhouse

Brian recalls that his Mom helped out on the farm in every way she could. She was a tradi-tional farm wife in the best sense of the word. Her children and grandchil-dren came and went. She would make a rhubarb pie for Tim and Kathy. Dan's favourite was her Banana Cream Pie, and all the kids loved her Tapioca Pud-ding. Rosemary would bring Andrea and Brian every summer, and she and her mom would share fresh tomato sandwiches from the garden. Drew and Devin would join in the fun with the others. And Joan and Alan would come from Winnipeg with their camper in tow.

Frances and Rosemary travelled a lot together over the years: Germany, Alaska, Hawaii, England, Scotland, Ireland, parts of Europe (the Vatican, St. Peters Basilica, and a gondola ride in Venice). In Ireland they saw 'granddad's farm home' which he had left in 1889.

Imagine a summer scene in which a big red wagon, pulled by a Honda fourwheeler, with a colorful striped sheet flying from four broom handles, flies by Grandma's house. A twin mattress softened the box of the wagon, which was full of the young cousins with glowing, suntanned faces. Oh, look, there it goes again! And there's Grandma's face there's Grandma's face looking out the window! Rosemary is taking pic-tures and rolling videos as the delighted cousins are having the time of their lives. Grandma did a lot of 'surveillance work' on the farm talling her grand. farm, telling her grand-kids to slow down.

There is so much to share. One hundred and five years have flown by, to be marked from this time forward by lively memories and quiet times memories and quiet times spent in her presence. Frances led what could be called a simple life, but it was a life abundant in what truly mattered. We are all better people for having known her.
